

Atika Scott de Martinville, PhD, CPCC, PCC, ORSC

Atika has more than 17 years of experience in the corporate world. Atika started her career as a PhD computer scientist for EADS (airbus.com) before moving to consulting in organization and management where she helped many corporate clients to manage different strategic transformations, adding strong skills in Business acumen, project and change management. She then joined Danone (Danone.com) to lead the IT/IS team in charge of WW Group Treasury, managing high financial and technical risks and ensuring high team/process and tools adaptability to face internal and external challenges.

She successfully moved to HR teams as an OD expert supporting businesses in their transformations. Since 7 years she is a leadership coach bringing an inventive approach to coaching and her ability to cut through the “noise” in situations that helps her clients find solutions, uncover opportunities and deepen their own learning. Her enthusiastic and collaborative style works best with clients that like to think big, are outcome driven, and believe that people can be the key differentiator in a company's success.

Atika is a disruptive thinker, an achiever, trustful, great listener and a person of integrity.
